

Let's Talk About Reading! Sample Social Media Posts

Facebook

Parents can help children building early literacy skills right from the start! Check out these resources from Too Small to Fail for fun tips and ideas to make everyday moments opportunities to nurture growing readers and writers. <https://talkingisteaching.org/resources/literacy>

Books build connections. That's why it's important to read with your little one every day. Check out this toolkit from Too Small to Fail and the American Academy of Pediatrics for tips on promoting early literacy and learning: <https://www.aap.org/en-us/literacy/Pages/default.aspx>

Twitter

Reading together is a great opportunity to help your baby learn! While you read books with your baby, point to and talk about the pictures: "Look, the red train goes choo-choo!"
#TalkingIsTeaching

When you read a story together, make predictions with your child. Ask, "What do you think will happen next? Why do you think that?"

#TalkingIsTeaching Tip: Let your baby turn the pages when you read a book together! It can help him feel engaged with the story. #LetsTalkBooks