

LET'S TALK, READ AND SING ABOUT GRANDPARENTS!

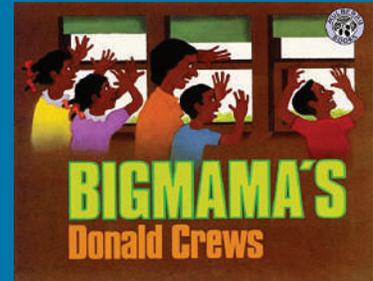

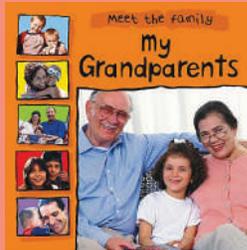

BOOK AND VIDEO RECOMMENDATIONS FOR YOUNG CHILDREN

BOOKS

My Grandparents (Meet the Family)

By: Mary Auld

Real photos of grandparents in different families are featured in this book. Children will learn what grandparents are called, what they do, and how they feel about their grandchildren.

Bigmama's

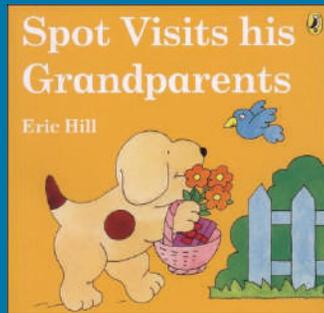

By: Donald Crews

For many children, summer means visits with grandparents. In this book, the author recalls family visits to his grandparent's farm in Florida and all the fun they had every year.

Spot Visits His Grandparents

By: Eric Hill

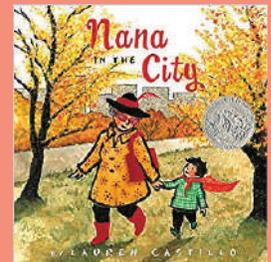

In this lift-the-flap book, Spot spends a day at his grandparents' house. He enjoys looking at old photographs and learning about what his mum did as a pup. Young children love to read about Spot the puppy and will enjoy lifting the flaps.

Nana in the City

By: Lauren Castillo

A little boy visits his Nana at her new apartment in New York City. He loves his Nana but isn't so sure about being in the big, noisy city, until she shows him all the wonderful, fun things you can do in the city.

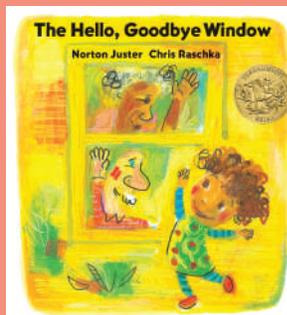

The Hello, Goodbye Window

By: Norton Juster

Illustrated by: Chris Raschka

In this story, a little girl visits her grandparents and especially loves their kitchen "hello-goodbye" window. She believes her grandma that it is a magic window and imagines all sorts of visitors coming to see them.

VIDEO

Set limits with love!

Watch this grandmother interact with her grandchild by setting limits with love. Setting limits with love simultaneously teaches children about self-control while still demonstrating your profound love for them. Positive interactions like this leave children feeling confident and cared for. Check out the video here!

For more tips and information, please visit: www.talkingisteaching.org